Brooklyn Politics.—THE REPUBLICAN CITY CONVENTION AND ITS CANDIDATES.—Mr. Epiron: Nothing can exceed the alient contempt with which the great mass of the Republican voters of the City of Brooklyn have and do regard the various proceedings which have resulted in placing in nomination Messrs. Field Duryea, and Williams, as candidates for City Officers, to be supported by the "Opposition" at the April election. "Republican" organs have denounced so often and so warmly the alleged practice of "Democratic" leaders selecting candidates before the meeting of Conventions, that Republican voters, taking them at their word, have imbibed a hearty disgust of all such proceedings.
Messrs. Northup and Lewis, the Know-Nothing portion of the Water Commissioners, have given out that the organization of the American party in Kings County has been entirely abandoned. This statement has been promulgated in order to strengthen the claims of these two Commissioners to be continned in sinecare offices by a Republican Legislature. The American organization for Kings County may indeed have closed its "day-light" career; but this has been followed by the revival of the "dark-lantern" in all its hideous deformities. The American organization for Kings County may indeed have closed its at once apparent. The "faithful" have been instructed in the language of a Know-Nothing who has superseeded a Republican of 1855 in the Port Wardens' office, to "get into bed with the Black Republicans, and kick the curses out." In other words, they were to attend the Republican primaries, and either secure the election of Republicans in the interest of the Know-Nothing Water Commissioners, or Simon-pure Know-Nothings, to the City Convention.

No wonder that the boast went forth that there was a majority

Water Commissioners, or Simon-pure Know-Nothings, to the City Convention.

No wonder that the boast went forth that there was a majority of members of the "Order" in the Republican City Convention. They have gotten into our political bed and kicked us out: Where shall we go? Shall we submit as citizens and tax-payers, to see our burdens greatly enhanced, in order to furnish material for purchasing a few Know-Nothing soldiers of fortune, or shall we take up arms against a sea of corruptions, and, by overthrowing those who proft by them, end them? I am one of those Republicans who have made unceasing warfare upon the attempt to fasten a system of extravagant expenditure and the principles of hereditary government upon the administration of the Ridgewood Water-Works. How can I, and those who oppose Lecomptonism at Albany as well as at Washington, support candidates who have made themselves the champions of a law which gives the appointment of public officers to a private floar of Directors, and which compels the people of Brooklyn to pay 16 per cent for the collection of the Water Tax—a service performed in New-Yorkfor 24 per cent? Are we, under denunciations of Lecomptonism at Washington, to sanction the establishment of hereditary government in our municipal sfairs? comptonism at Washington, our municipal affairs?

A REPUBLICAN FROM THE START.

THE RELIGION OF SCIENCE, --- An error. wholly subversive of most important meaning, was made in the long advertisement of this work, in yesterday's Tribune. The ninth paragraph, an extract from the work itself, should have read: "Opinionism, and that immaculate abortion—moralism are the lingering relics of the primitively natural delusion, that mind is an entity, and that mere will originated matter." Instead of which, the compositor some how or other contrived metamorphose the word "moralism" into "materialism." In the last line of the fourth paragraph of the said advertisement, for "reliability" read "reality." For the author.

"The author's exhibition of his beroise's crude, half-mystertous half-enthusiastic character, shows that he has difficently searched the human heart. Florence is absorbed by a sentiment of religious duty, with which her sensitiveness to the influence of he tender passion seems to conflict; and much of the exquisite portrayal of her character consists in the reconciliation of her paperntly antagonistic emotions. The story will soon appear, nd we commend it to every reader as a work worthy of particular attention."
